U.S. Ethnic and Indigenous Studies

Minor

The U.S. Ethnic and Indigenous Studies minor is an interdisciplinary minor, which aims to introduce students to United States ethnic, Indigenous, and racial groups; history, theory and cultural analyses of ethnicity, indigeneity, race, class and culture in the United States; and opportunities for engaged learning and community service among U.S. ethnic, Indigenous, racial and regional groups. Students will explore the following: 1) theoretical and practical approaches to race, ethnicity, and indigeneity in multicultural America; 2) interdisciplinary perspectives on U.S. ethnic/Indigenous/racial groups; 3) issues of cultural identity from the perspectives of people of color and heritage cultures; 4) discrimination, prejudice and other inequalities against racial, ethnic and Indigenous groups; and 5) opportunities to learn about services, interventions and civic engagement in addressing respect, civility and social justice issues. Other courses, including second year seminars, may be approved by the program coordinator.

Tribal Scholar Program

U.S. Ethnic and Indigenous Studies will implement a Tribal Scholars Program. We will bring a Native historian or instructor to campus for a set time to work with faculty, students and staff as well as to use BSU resources to further their own studies.

Indigenous Teaching Circle

Faculty are invited to join the Indigenous Teaching Circle which will meet once a month in AY 16-17 to share resources and pedagogy.

Ethnic Studies Week

U.S. Ethnic and Indigenous Studies joins national groups to celebrate Ethnic Studies Week: October 1-7. We also support teaching Ethnic Studies at all levels of schooling.
